Doug Unkrey is an artist, machinist, and fabricator. He can design and build anything out of anything, from a bench to a building, from a work of art to a working prototype of a new invention. Doug has built racing cars and bicycles, medical devices, and more. He often collaborates with others on art and engineering adventures. Doug collaborated with David Best and Chris Perry in designing and building the "Temple of Remembrance". The infamous 800lb. "Hammer", which was stolen from the Healdsburg Community Center, is one of his most recent sculptures. Doug is an integral part of the Voigt Family Sculpture Foundation and the chief mentor to emerging artists in the residency program.
